PREFATORY NOTE.

The Catalogue of books in European languages in the Library of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, published in 1910, has been out of print for a long time, and the need for an up-to-date re-issue has been felt with ever-increasing force. In 1924 the Council decided to take in hand the preparation of a new Catalogue, but no Official of the Society was found to be in a position to devote sufficient time to the work to enable him to take entire and exclusive responsibility for it. The preliminary work of revising old and drawing up new entries was first entrusted to a specially engaged clerk who soon gave up the work, to be followed by a successor who did likewise, when at last in 1928 the work was placed in the hands of a member of the Society's staff, Babu S. K. Ray, who continued the work capably and expeditiously. Financial and other circumstances made progress slow but at last the work has been completed. Several members of Council have from time to time performed a substantial amount of proof-reading and exercised supervision, to all of whom the Society's thanks are due.

Every title printed in this Catalogue has been verified with that in the copy of the work in the Library. Innumerable mistakes in the old edition have been corrected but it has been noticed that minor imperfections still remain, especially in the matter of division of syllables in foreign words. The Catalogue deals with books in more than a dozen different languages, on subjects of a most varied nature, and consequently bristles with proper names and technical terms which need expert knowledge to be dealt with in a satisfactory manner. The old elaborate and profuse system of title-notation has been allowed to remain without modification. The Catalogue is placed before the members of the Society as a useful and indispensable instrument of research and as a trustworthy guide to a large portion of the Society's literary material, but does not aspire to the title of a production of scientific bibliography. It is the outcome of such administrative activity as lies within the means of staff and financial resources of the Asiatic Society of Bengal at the present moment.

An Appendix has been added which gives the new acquisitions incorporated in the Library during the printing of the Catalogue to the end of 1933.

CALCUTTA,
23rd March, 1934.
